Seniors to Present "Follies of '27"

Entertainment of Mirth and Music to Be Given at High School.

"The Follies of '27," a program of mirth, music and genuine entertainment, will be presented by the Antioch township high school seniors and the friends at the school auditorium on Friday evening of this week, Dec. 10.

The seniors have worked faithfully with Mr. Stark and Mr. Jepsen to make the big school show a success. There is to be a great variety of acts featuring comedians, acrobats, dancers, singers and musicians. In these selections, you will find your friend. Among other things there will be Nixon and Morley in a comedy dance and jokes; Miss Throck, singing "Cherrie, I Love You," Schunnesson and Clara Michell in a comedy skit; Mr. Kay singing a group of Scotch songs; Miss Banck and Mr. Watson in a dance; Simpson and Schunnesson, acrobatic stunts; Stark, Morley, Thompson and Hallway, male quartette; the Pepper Twins in song; Hilma Rosing and Lena Schora, duet, accompanied by chorus; Clara Michell and Forbick, duet accompanied by chorus; music by Lois White and her boys, Camp Lake broadcasters.

The proceeds from this entertainment will go to the senior class fund for their annual gift to the high school.

Tickets will be on sale at Reeve's drug store.

Firemen Get Early Morning Summons

Antioch volunteer firemen answered a hurry call to the home of Frank Mastne on Park avenue at 8:20 Wednesday morning, only to find a chimney was burning out. It looked bad for a few minutes but no damage was done. It's all right, better be safe than sorry, and the Antioch firemen are ready to go at all hours. But property owners should give the boys a chance to nip a fire in the bud, and not wait to see if you can put out the fire yourself. Put in the call first, then do what you can until the firemen get on the job. Observance of this rule might save a lot of property.

NEW CLUB FOR GIRLS ORGANIZED

Last Monday afternoon a group of girls met at the home of Mrs. Morley and organized a Candidates Class of the Girl's Friendly Society. Miss Helen Kettelhut will be the Director. The next meeting will be held in the Parish house of St. Ignatius' church at four o'clock at which time plans will be made for the coming year. Any girl who is interested in Christian helpfulness and service may belong.

FRIENDS SURPRISE MR. AND MRS. HORTON

In spite of the storm of last Saturday evening about fourteen relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Horton and gave the couple a very pleasant surprise.

Five hundred was played after which a dainty lunch was served. The guests departed at a late hour declaring they had had a very enjoyable time.

SONIC LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS

Sequoia Lodge A. F. & A. M. elected officers at the annual meeting held Tuesday night. Annual reports were also read and lunch was served following the business session.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. M.—Edward Garrett.
Senior Warden—Arthur Hawkins.
Junior Warden—Herman Cubbon.
Treasurer—Ernest Simons.
Secretary—Frank Huber.
Senior Deacon—Emil Steiskal.
Junior Deacon—Chris Larsen.
Tyler—Sol LaPlant.

College girls are taking up boxing. They wrestle, also, but it is called dancing.

Officials Take Oath of Office

Sheriff Doolittle Only Man New to Office.

Seven Lake county officials, elected in November, began the active duties of their offices Monday. Of the seven, only one, Lawrence Doolittle, sheriff, is new to office. In the case of five other officials it was merely a matter of taking up their duties Monday where they left off Saturday as these five were re-elected to the offices they have held the past term.

While there was one other newly elected officer, County Treasurer Roy Bracher, it was also an old story with him as he served as treasurer from 1918 to 1922 and for the past four years was chief deputy in the office of Ira E. Pearshall, who succeeded him in 1922 and whom he succeeded Monday.

Simpson Dean of County Officials.

In point of years of continuous service, County Superintendent of Schools, T. Arthur Simpson is dean of all county officials, as his tenure of office extends over a period of 26 years. County Clerk Lew A. Hendee and County Judge Perry L. Persons have each served for 16 years, and Probate Judge Martin C. Decker and Probate Clerk John Bullock have held office for four years each. There was no special program Monday to mark the installation of the county officers, apparently because there was not much of a change in officials.

New Force of Deputies.

Sheriff Doolittle has practically an entirely new force of deputies. He kept but one deputy who served under his predecessor. The deputy retained is Elmer Hudson, night turnkey for the past five years. The new sheriff also kept Mrs. Helen Pardini as his private secretary.

Regular deputies in the office of Sheriff Doolittle follow:

Fred "Buster" Brown, Waukegan, chief deputy.

Thomas Tyrell, Waukegan, day turnkey.

Elmer Hudson, night turnkey.

H. A. "Hub" Doolittle, father of Lawrence, Waukegan, bailiff of the Circuit and Probate courts.

Emmett Hastings, Wadsworth, bailiff of the County court.

Charles Krueger, a constable at Half Day.

Edward Dunn, Wauconda.

Store Displays Herald Approach of Yuletide

Day by day in every way decorations in Antioch stores and shops proclaim the approach of the Christmas season, and soon the entire Main street will take on the holiday aspect.

Many Christmas shopping ads of local stores appear in the News today. They are as interesting as anything that one may peruse these days, for they not only speak of the approaching yuletide, with all that means, but they illustrate as well the rapid growth of the town and its development. One is apt to think of modern, progressive Antioch in terms only of population and of public improvements, but the real earmark of the progressive city is its stores. The real badge of prosperity is the type of retail stores a city boasts.

The advertising columns of the newspaper of today demonstrate the fact that Antioch has stores of which any city may be proud and as metropolitan as those of many boasting larger population. And the stores themselves are as interesting as the ads.

Sidney Butler, 14, a high school student and son of George Butler, a telephone company employe residing at 1426 Lloyd avenue, Waukegan, died at the Victory Memorial hospital Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock as the result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile at Cummings avenue and Jackson street at 5 p. m. The youthful victim suffered a fractured arm and internal injuries.

He Rules the Kingdom of Heart's Delight

MISS VIRGINIA RADKE IS BRIDE OF KENOSHA MAN

Miss Virginia Radke became the bride of Richard P. Cavanagh, Kenosha attorney, last Saturday, Dec. 4, the ceremony being performed at Lake Forest, Ill.

Miss Radke made her home in Antioch until about four years ago, and she has many friends here who extend congratulations and best wishes for a happy wedded life.

The Kenosha Evening News of last Saturday carried the following account of the wedding:

A wedding of Kenoshaans took place at Lake Forest, Ill., this morning when Miss Virginia L. Radke, of this city, became the bride of Richard P. Cavanagh, a prominent Kenosha attorney. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh left for a week's wedding trip after which they will return to Kenosha to make their home at the Shirley Apartments on 60th street.

Mrs. Cavanagh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Radke, of Antioch, Ill., where she was graduated from the high school. For the past few years she has been employed in the offices of the Nash Motors company in Kenosha.

Attorney Cavanagh a member of the law firm of Randall, Cavanagh and Mittelstaed. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of the law school of that institution and a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. He is likewise a member of the Kenosha Country club, having been state golf champion several times, and of various fraternal organizations.

ANTIOCH REBEKAHS ELECT OFFICERS

A large crowd attended the regular meeting of the Rebekah lodge held in the Woodman hall last Friday night.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Noble Grand—Mary Wilton. Vice Grand—Carrie Norman. Warder—Ira Osmond. Recording Secretary—Reba Sleyser.

Treasurer—Erma Powles. Financial Secretary—Vida Moon.

After the election of officers a birthday party was held. The meeting closed after a social hour, dainty refreshments being served. A Christmas party will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 17, the next regular meeting night.

A. G. Brinley, of Davis, California, representative of the Southern Pacific railway at the International live stock exposition, was a guest over the week end at the home of his friend, F. J. Hunt and family. Mr. Brinley, used to California's mild weather, got a big kick out of the blizzard here last Saturday afternoon when he and Mr. Hunt made a trip to Kenosha.

Double Funeral at Bristol Sunday

Mrs. Albertina Krahn Dies on Eve of Husband's Funeral.

Double funeral services were held for Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krahn at the aged couple's late home near Bristol, Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock.

Mr. Krahn's demise occurred on Wednesday and stricken with grief over the death of her aged husband, Mrs. Krahn, 86, followed him in death four days later about three hours before the appointed time for the funeral of the husband Sunday.

At eleven o'clock Sunday morning Mrs. Krahn succumbed to an attack of heart failure. She had been ailing for some time, and a week ago she relapsed and was confined to her bed. The death of her husband last Wednesday hastened another attack, from which she was unable to recover.

Following the double funeral services Tuesday, held at one o'clock from the Zion Evangelical Lutheran church at Bristol, the aged couple were laid to rest in the family plot in the Liberty Corners cemetery.

Mrs. Krahn was born in Friedrickswalde, Germany, May 4, 1840, and in 1893 she came to America and settled at Bristol where she has lived for thirty-three years. She was widely known in the Bristol community and all throughout Kenosha county. Like her husband Mrs. Krahn also took an active part in the early settlement of the community and was deeply interested in the civic affairs of Bristol.

Ten Children Survive.

The deceased couple is survived by ten children seventy grandchildren and thirty-three great grandchildren.

The sons and daughters who survive are: Herman and William Krahn, Mrs. Louise Romie, Mrs. Albert Schultz, Salem, Mrs. William Laseo, Antioch; Mrs. George R. Hebard, Kenosha; August, Henry, Albert and Mrs. William Wolf, Bristol. A daughter, Mrs. E. Gilina, preceded them in death in 1915.

GEORGE HILLIER INJURED IN TRUCK SMASHUP

Word has been received here that George Hillier, a former Antioch resident, was seriously injured recently at Ottawa, Kansas, when two trucks collided at a street intersection in that city. Mr. Hillier was riding in one of the trucks and following the accident he was picked up unconscious. He sustained a deep scalp wound and many minor bruises, but is recovering, according to reports.

Mrs. Madora Webb spent last Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Chicago with relatives and while there she attended the Fat Stock Show.

Poultry Show Next Week

Third Annual Exhibit at Allendale Dec. 17 and 18.

$400.00 IN PREMIUMS OFFERED.

All is in readiness for the third annual poultry show to be held at Allendale Farm, Lake Villa, Friday and Saturday of next week, Dec. 17 and 18, according to the committee members in charge of this year's exhibit.

Over four hundred dollars in premiums is being offered by the association for the best specimens of the feathery tribe exhibited at the show. All standard varieties of chickens, geese, ducks, turkeys, guinea fowl, pheasants, pigeons, bantams and rabbits may be shown, and brown and white shelled eggs will also be shown.

Those who expect to exhibit should write to the secretary, G. W. Jensen, for entry blanks and instructions. Admission is to be free for both the day and night shows.

State Man to Be Here. The members of the Lake county farm bureau have engaged the services of an expert from the state department of agriculture who will demonstrate the grading and marketing of eggs and show the value of such work.

It is planned that motion pictures on the subject are to be shown continuously while the poultry show is in progress.

"Indications are that the exhibits will be large this year," President Kniff said yesterday, stating that Association members are planning to care for the largest and finest exhibit in the history of the show.

Jensen to Head Legionaires

Antioch Post Elects Officers for 1927 at Friday Night Meeting.

Dr. G. W. Jensen, Antioch veterinarian and ex-service man, has been chosen to head the local legionaires for the year 1927. Dr. Jensen was elected commander at a meeting of the local post held last Friday night at the Danish hall. Commander Ray Webb was urged to accept the chair for another year, but declined, saying that he thought the office should be passed around. The honor fell to Dr. Jensen. Forty Legion members attended the meeting.

Other officers elected were: Vice commander, Arthur Maplethorpe, adjutant, John L. Horan, finance officer, George Garland, Chaplain, Otto S. Klass, color bearers, Andrew Cobb and Clarence Shultis.

John Worth, adjutant of McHenry post, made a very snappy talk. The Post selected a howling team to perform at the American Legion tournament next week.

Legionaires Remember Buddies. During the serving of a splendid feed a collection was taken for the buddies at the hospital at Five Points and about twenty dollars was contributed which will go into the fund collected from all posts in the county to buy fruits, candies, so that proper arrangements may be made. Prof. Snively was formerly with the Columbia School and is well known as a dramatic critic and reader.

Nineteen twenty-seven is going to be a big year for the Antioch Post, said a Legion man yesterday in talking over future plans for the organization. "There are a lot of eligible ex-service men in his locality who are not Legion members," continued the speaker, "and we are going to extend a cordial invitation to these fellows to come in with us. We need them and they need us."

Mrs. Margaret Uischer, who has been visiting relatives here for a few weeks left on Monday for her home at Friendstown, Texas, she was accompanied home by her nephew, Aretas Keulman, who will spend the winter at Friendstown.

Youth Drowned In Cedar Lake

Body of Allendale Student Found Under Ice Last Friday.

LAD WELL KNOWN IN ANTIOCH.

Calvin Wood, 12 years old, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood, instructor in printing at the Allendale farm school, was drowned when he fell through the ice on Cedar Lake last Friday morning. The body was recovered shortly after noon.

The youth was an honor student and had permission to spend the day Friday as he chose, as it is the practice at the Allendale school to allow students who have done satisfactory work one day leisure each month. Friday was Calvin's honor day, and shortly after breakfast he went alone to Cedar Lake to skate. His failure to return resulted in a search being started for him and the finding of his body under the ice near an open water hole. The boy's watch had stopped at 9:05 o'clock. It was after more than an hour's search by faculty members and others that the body was recovered. A call was made to Antioch and John L. Horan hurried to the scene with a pulmotor but all efforts to revive the youth failed.

A verdict of accidental drowning was returned by the coroner's jury at the inquest at Strang's undertaking rooms Friday afternoon.

Funeral services were held Monday at Allendale and the body was taken to Evanston, the former home of the parents, for burial.

Frank Wood, father of the victim was formerly a partner with John L. Horan in the ownership of the Antioch News, and both the lad and his parents were quite well known here. Calvin was a bright, manly lad, universally loved and his untimely death is mourned by all who knew him. The grief-stricken parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their hour of sorrow.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES AT WINSOR, WIS.

Word was received here by friends of the death of Herman Fox, which occurred at his home at Winsor, Wis., on Saturday morning at five o'clock after being ill for several months.

Mr. Fox with his family moved to Winsor, Wis., about a year ago, where they purchased a farm.

Mr. Fox leaves to mourn his loss his wife, three daughters, beside other relatives.

The funeral services were held at the home on Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with burial in the cemetery at Winsor.

NOTED PROF. TO ADDRESS YOUNG PEOPLES' GROUP

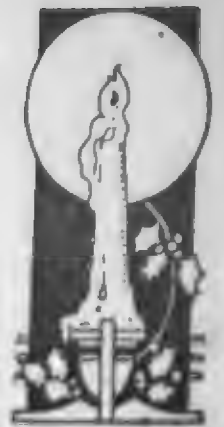

Prof. E. H. Snively, of Lake Forest University, where he is Professor of Freshmen will address the Gamma Kappa Delta Club members and their friends after supper at St. Ignatius Parish House, Sunday evening at 5:30 o'clock on the subject "The Christian Church and the Development of the Modern Drama." This will be of interest to many that enjoy the Modern Drama. Members of the community are invited and are asked to notify Louise Simons so that proper arrangements may be made. Prof. Snively was formerly with the Columbia School and is well known as a dramatic critic and reader.

Eighteen men were arrested in a police raid Monday night on an alleged gambling house at Genesee street and Browning avenue, Waukegan. Albert Prevost, 32, of 551 So. Ulton street, was booked as the keeper. He was released in bonds of $400. The raid was conducted by Police Lieut. Earl Clark and his squad.

Plans of the city of Waukegan to build a waterworks system which include a modern filtration plant is attracting national interest among contractors and more than 60 applications for information on the project and plans and specifications have been made from all sections of the United States.

A Merry Christmas To One and All

Her Christmas Wish

By Christopher G. Hazard

MR. TIMOTHY TITUS was hanging out the clothes in the keen December wind and Mr. Frost was freezing them stiff as fast as possible. A clothespin in her mouth did not prevent the good woman from singing "I Want to Be an Angel," and her daughter Anna, as she brought out the rest of the wash, hoped that the desire thus expressed would soon be granted. For it must be confessed that the life of the Titus family was not a happy one. Care had written wrinkles on the mother's face and also upon her disposition. Nothing could have looked sweeter in Christmas prospect to the Titus household than something angelic, but all of them, from the old man down to Peggy, felt that it depended upon her; so that this strain from the back yard had a note of hope in it, over against the probability of another wintry and bitter holiday.

Mr. Timothy Titus shared this hope from the standpoint of the trials of his winter vacation. During the rest of the year and while it was good natured out of doors he was a gardener, but with the advent season he became an unappreciated piece of furniture about the Titus home.

The fact was that Samantha Titus was, at heart, a hopeful, kindly and generous woman. The principal reason of present scarcity in her household had been her goodness to the sick and poor within her reach. A neighbor had remarked upon her liberality by saying that "Manthy Titus gave away in the winter all that Tim Titus could get out of summer," and that "she not only gave away all the profits, but was ready to give away all the apostles besides." Her song on that cold day did not indicate that she felt satisfied with herself, but rather that something of Christmas longing was really stirring within her.

Anyway, the wish might have been a prayer, for it was answered. As Anna put it afterward, "It seemed like what happened to the shepherds at Bethlehem." For Mrs. Titus got a new and happy idea in a peculiar way. She had been calling for a Mr. Sax over the telephone for half the afternoon in vain, in order to collect a washing bill that might slightly improve the Christmas possibilities, when Anna humorously suggested that she might try the saxophone. The joke not only made her laugh, but it brought to her mind the thought that sometimes fortune punishes us for neglecting our relations to others by the failure of the resources that we have depended upon and rewards our use of new and untold means. This thought caused Mrs. Titus to put her pride in her empty pocket and pushed her out upon the flood of affection that reached as far as California. For her brother Sam, who had not heard a word from her for years, received a letter that was stained with a loving tear or two, and it was like a Christmas present for the far-away brother. It provoked a loving expression also, as love always does, and through it the Tituses began a new and relieved history. With Christmas time the burden of care and labor that had pressed so heavily fell off, and the angel that had been under it came out, as the smiling mother dressed old Timothy up for a Santa Claus and was merry with them all.

When Sam heard about it he felt like one of the Wise Men, even if he had hailed from the West, and sent his gifts ahead of him. It was worth the long journey to hear Peggy say that she thought he was the real Santa Claus and to kiss her rosy cheek.

A Song for Christmas

By James Whitcomb Riley

CHANT me a rhyme of Christmas—
Sing me a jovial song—
And though it is filled with laughter,
Let it be pure and strong.

Sing of the hearts brimmed o'er
With the story of the day—
Of the echo of childish voices
That will not die away.

Of the blare of the tasseled bugle,
And the timeless clatter and beat
Of the drum that throbs to muster
Squadrons of scampering feet.

But, O, let your voice fall fainter,
Till, blent with a minor tone,
You temper your song with the beauty
Of the pity Christ hath shown.

And sing one verse for the voiceless;
And yet, ere the song be done,
A voice for the ears that hear not,
And a verse for the sightless one.

For though it be time for singing
A merry Christmas glee,
Let a low, sweet voice of pathos
Run through the melody.

Christmas, a God-Man,

Said John Wanamaker

"Christmas is a man born—not a sentiment," said John Wanamaker. Too often we think of the birth of the Christ-child as a beautiful story, and we are apt to forget that the event we celebrate at the Christmastide is a historical fact. So many fairy tales have been woven into the original fabric that the truth is in danger of being obscured. Christmas is not a beautiful legend about a plump old man with white whiskers and a pack of toys on his back. Christmas is a God-man born into the world to give light and life, peace and joy—a reality that tops all realities.

Wrapping the Gift

If we do not wrap up a little love with our Christmas gift what is the use?

THE Prince of Good Fellows

A Christmas Thought

By Tudor Jenks

WHEN mother-love makes all things bright,
When joy comes with the morning light,
When children gather round their tree,
Thou Christmas Babe,
We sing of Thee!

When manhood's brows are bent in thought,
To learn what men of old have taught,
When eager hands seek wisdom's key,
Wise Temple Child,
We learn of Thee!

When doubts assail, and perils fright,
When groping blindly in the night,
We strive to read life's mystery,
Man of the Mount,
We turn to Thee!

When shadows of the valley fall,
When sin and death the soul appal,
One light we through the darkness see—
Christ on the Cross,
We cry to Thee!

And when the world shall pass away,
And dawn at length the perfect day,
In glory shall our souls made free,
Thou God enthroned,
Then worship Thee.

Dolls Replicas of Peasants

The smallest member of the household, whether of the masculine or feminine persuasion, will delight in amusing dolls which come from central Europe. They are dressed in peasant costumes of felt which have applied designs in many colors. They are exact replicas of peasant children and have the quaintest little faces.

Old Songs of Yule

by Frances Marshall Morgan

A CHRISTMAS EVE draws near in every civilized land there is the customary revival of interest in the beloved old songs and carols that for hundreds of years have gladdened the hearts of men. Back into the mists of the ages must we delve in our search for records of the first Christmas carol. We find that the pagans had chants that they sang at the season of the year when days were shortest. There is the song of Isidore, beginning, "Sing, Oh Heaven, Be Joyful, Oh Earth!" And there is the song of Melchior, dating seven centuries before Christ's birth. Tradition says that the oldest of all Christian hymns was sung by the angels above the fields of Bethlehem and later by the barbarian martyrs in the arena at Rome.

Today the singing of Christmas carols is almost a universal custom.

There is scarce a community boasting a little red school house, or church, where will not gather, on Christmas Eve, the farmers with rosy-cheeked families to lustily join in the biggest event of the whole year, the Christmas community "sing." Church choirs in the villages and cities, as usual, will render their special Christmas programs. Yet, is there one among us who does not best love the custom of singing the old songs beneath the candle-lit window, for "sweet charity's sake"?

With the thought of the little hands of singers soon to start on their pilgrimages, from door to door, giving of their talents to the poor, there comes to mind the old English custom still observed in rural communities, although the cities know it no more. These little bands of carolers, called wails, sang the identical songs that every Englishman loves today, although they were first heard centuries ago. It is one of the picturesque English customs that have survived through the ages.

The radio's discovery brought with it an immense revival of interest in the Christmas carol. Thousands upon thousands of folk who will sit at their fire-sides on Christmas Eve eager to "listen in" are becoming familiar with the ancient carols and Christmas songs in a way that could not be possible before its advent. Last year the broadcasting of Christmas songs by world famous artists was one of the most delightful events connected with the pleasures of the season. The old carols were the features of the programs. This year, as last, the most beautiful Christmas song will probably be "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," Phillips Brooks' masterpiece, the most popular of all the many and lovely numbers sent over the air. This song is probably the best loved modern composition, dealing with the birth of Christ. "When Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," is the oldest carol written in our language. It is the work of Nahum Tate, poet laureate of England in 1692.

France, Italy, Wales and Ireland, it is said, are among the countries that cling closest to the custom of carol singing. France calls her Christmas songs "noels," from "noël" which signified, originally a cry of joy at Christmas.

Many of the famous old Christmas songs are cheerful, heartwarming and suggestive of the good times of the season. However, the most beautiful and best loved are the carols that breathe a spirit of reverence and tell in simple words the story of the manger and God's gift to the whole world.

Christmas Games for Whole Family

Amusement That Will Help
Fill in Time Following the Big Feast.

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

AFTER the excitement of opening gifts has subsided; after the first glory of the Christmas tree has passed; after the turkey and cranberry sauce have been attended to and thoroughly demolished, there comes a pause at twilight time. This pause (provided you are a nice old-fashioned family) can be happily filled by playing a few simple games which are sure to send the members into shouts of laughter. The fun comes from the solemn way in which grandpa lifts his feet over pillows on the floor—when no pillows are there; how daddy puffs out his cheeks, and blows with all his might at the book-case when he thinks he is facing a candle; how Bill staggers across the room after turning around three times with his head on a cane, and tries to strike a match and light the candle.

Nothing very elaborate, as you can see, but good, wholesome entertainment.

(1) Blindfold daddy, after first facing him towards a lighted candle, some distance away. Ask him to turn three times, and then when he thinks he again faces the candle, to go ahead, blindfolded, and blow it out. He never can do it in the world!

(2) Grandpa enjoys sport as much as anyone. Why shouldn't he? If he has not heard of the pillow game, persuade him to try it. Place four pillows in a row on the floor with a foot or two of space between each pillow. Allow grandpa to get his bearings thoroughly, then blindfold him, turn him around and head him toward the pillows. Ask him to step over them. On no account whatever may he be allowed to "feel" for them with his feet! While he is being turned about, let one of the children quietly remove the pillows. To see the dear old gentleman stepping over imaginary pillows is very amusing, and he'll be perfectly astounded when you take off the handkerchief from his eyes.

(3) Try this game on Bill. It requires steady nerve and great determination.

Set an unlighted candle with a match beside it on a table. Give Bill a cane at the other side of the room: Tell him to hold it upright in both his hands and then to rest his head on it, standing of course. He is then to turn rapidly about three times, after which someone takes the cane and Bill reels across the room towards the candle which he attempts to light with the match. It sounds simple, but just try it and see! (Children should not play this game alone, lest they get something afire in their zeal to strike the match.)

Tree Planting By Community Effort

Greatly Enhances Looks
and Comfort of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Suitable tree planting along public highways, which greatly enhances their appearance and comfort, is most satisfactorily done by the community as a whole rather than by individuals, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Interest in country highways in the United States has increased rapidly during the last few years. The greater interest in rural roads is due largely to the growing automobile traffic, a large part of which in pleasure driving in which the most beautiful routes are naturally sought.

While a few states have good laws providing for such planting, the remainder have either indifferent ones or none at all, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1481-F, "Planting the Roadside," just issued.

The traveling public has as much interest in the appearance of the road as a whole as the adjoining property holder. Furthermore, it is usually difficult to get each property holder to approve and act on a given plan. For these reasons, says the department, it is best to place the planting and subsequent care of roadside trees in the hands of a public body representing some such division as the state, county, town, township or parish, rather than smaller units.

Because of the intimate relationship between road construction and maintenance and the upkeep of the roadside, the closest co-operation between the highway department and those having the trees in charge is needed.

Suggestions relative to planning for the trees, planting and spacing them, kinds to plant, pruning, arrangement of shrubs and perennials, and other phases of the work are given.

A copy of the new publication may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Whitewash for Various Buildings Easily Made

Take one-half bushel of unslaked lime, slake it with boiling water, cover during the process to keep in steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it seven pounds of fine salt previously dissolved in warm water. Also add three pounds of rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound of Spanish whiting and one pound of glue previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then hanging over the fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let stand a few days covered to protect from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a portable furnace.

Dark Types of Wheat Are Best

Hard, Vitreous Kernels
Have Superior Qualities for Bread.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That hard, vitreous kernels of wheat have superior qualities for bread making when compared with the starchy grains of the same class of wheat is indicated in a series of tests recently made by J. H. Shollenberger and D. A. Coleman of the Department of Agriculture. Wheat of certain classes containing a high percentage of such kernels usually commands a premium over the price paid for the yellow and more starchy appearing wheats of the same class, because it is believed generally that the hard, vitreous kernels have superior bread-making qualities. This belief was recognized when the official United States grain standards were promulgated and the percentage of hard and vitreous kernels was taken as the basis for establishing subclasses for the hard red spring, hard red winter, durum, and white wheat classes.

Types of Kernels.

To establish definitely what relationship exists between the kernel texture and such important factors as test weight per bushel, flour yield, loaf volume of bread, water absorbing capacity of flour, and protein content, special studies were undertaken. Samples of hard red spring, hard red winter and durum wheats were separated into three types of kernels: dark, hard, vitreous; or amber; spotted or mottled; or yellow or starchy. Each was milled and tested for the various qualities.

The results showed that of the three types of kernel texture compared, the dark type, for each class of wheat, was consistently highest in specific gravity, usually highest in flour yield and color of loaf, decidedly superior in water absorption, weight of loaf and crude protein content, and slightly higher in ash, crude fiber, and acidity. In the hard red spring and hard red winter wheats, but not in the durum, the dark type of kernel was also slightly highest in loaf volume and texture of bread.

Starchy Type Superior.

The starchy kernel type was slightly superior in average fat content of wheat and in bran yield for all three classes of wheat tested, and in the durum wheat samples produced bread of the greatest volume and of best texture. In almost all the important milling and bread quality factors the starchy kernels, except of the durum wheat, were inferior to the other types.

Judged from the standpoint of these averages, it would appear that the dark kernels are decidedly superior to the other types of kernels and that the starchy kernels are just as decidedly inferior. Complete details concerning the tests and results are given in Department Bulletin No. 1424-D, "Relation of Kernel Texture to the Physical Characteristics, Milling and Baking Qualities, and Chemical Composition of Wheat," copies of which may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Swine Tuberculosis Not Considered as Serious

Owing to the comparatively short life of swine the spread of tuberculosis from hog to hog is not common, because the disease, being slow in its development, often fails to cause the breaking down of the affected tissues before the animal is slaughtered, writes Dr. L. Van Es in Capper's Farmer. Only in older tuberculous swine, such as breeding animals, may there be bacilli given off by the mouth or body discharges. More commonly the infection acquired from other animals and more particularly from affected cattle and poultry. The germs scattered about in yards by the droppings of tuberculous animals are readily taken up by swine in the pursuit of food. The bacilli contained in the various types of slaughter house offal, often fed to swine, can bring about their infection. Milk and dairy products derived from tuberculous cows always have played an important part in the transmission of the disease to swine. These are the principal facts that must be given consideration in the protection of swine against tuberculosis.

Barnyard Manure Useful to Maintain Fertility.

In maintaining the fertility of garden soil, barnyard manure should be used very liberally. Application at the rate of 20 to 30 tons to the acre each year is not too much. Well-rotted manure is to be preferred to fresh manure because its fertility is more readily available to the plants and it can be worked into the soil with greater ease. The manure should be applied in the fall of the year before plowing. When one does not choose to raise a second crop after an early one, a cover crop may be grown and plowed under in the fall. This will conserve the moisture and fertility of the soil, increase the humus content and add nitrogen if one of the legumes is used. It will seldom be necessary to use commercial fertilizers in South Dakota. But where they are necessary acid phosphate and nitrate of soda will be found most beneficial. From 200 to 400 pounds are applied to the acre each year.

Queen Mary Inclines to Nottingham Lace

London—Queen Mary has fitted all the rooms of Sandringham palace with Nottingham lace curtains and also has provided many of the beds in the famous palace with Nottingham lace spreads. This has come as something of a shock to decorators, who have been deceiving lace curtains as draperies.

In doing over the old home of the late Queen Alexandra a free sweep to her own taste has been taken by Queen Mary. The palace was somewhat gloomy with dark hangings and furniture. The queen has banished this gloom entirely and given a very bright, homely appearance to the place. It was fitted with many gifts and trophies of most sentimental value to the late queen, but most of these have been removed from the living rooms if they did not conform with the simpler style of decoration Queen Mary has chosen.

United by Radio Harmony

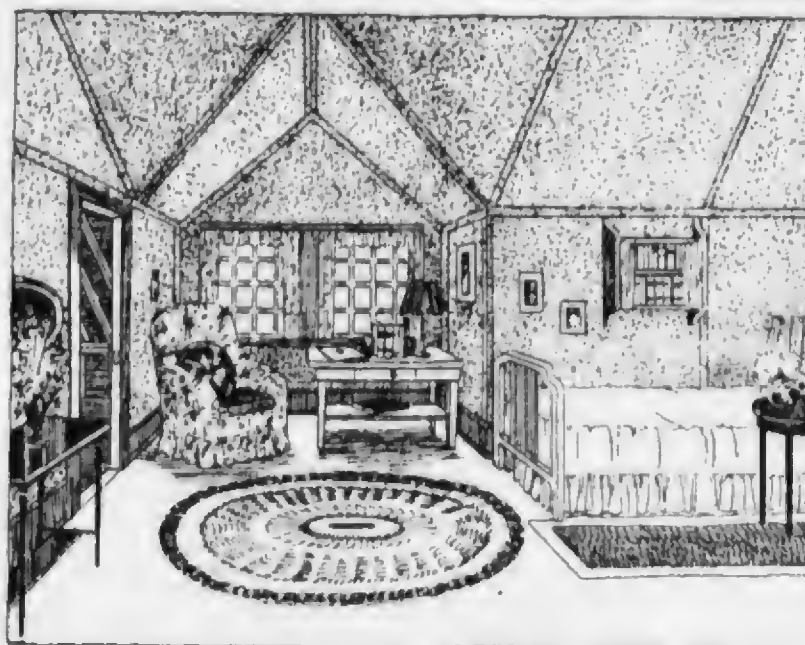

FROM more than fifty candidates, Juanita Rae and Harriet Lee have been selected as the new harmony team at WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation radio station, Chicago. Miss Lee hails from Indianapolis. Her partner is a product of Adrian, Mich. By virtue of their victory over all vocal competition the girls have become members of the station staff. They are now heard blending their voices on all popular programs. Miss Lee plays the piano accompaniment.

It was accidental, this forming of the Rae-Lee partnership. Miss Lee was playing an occasional piano accompaniment at another Chicago station. One evening Miss Rae appeared on the program. On an orchestra "break," while the station was broadcasting from a ballroom removed from the studio, the girls decided to try a duet. They discovered their voices blended in the most perfect harmony.

When WLS announced an open competition to select an additional entertainment feature, Miss Rae and Miss Lee were among the first entrants. So impressed were the station directors with the girls' work that they were immediately booked for appearances pending the outcome of the competition. While the contest brought forward other highly competent teams, no one succeeded in making off with higher honors and the girls were adjudged winners.

New Type of Attic Gives Extra Room

HALF the fun of having a home is knowing the joys of hospitality. Every housewife's dream is to have a dainty spare room always ready for the unexpected guest, but the small serventless house does not allow for it. What happens in most households when some one descends from out-of-town, is a great scurry and flurry doubling up other members of the family, or drawing lots to decide who is to sleep on the davenport in the living room.

In many homes, however, space for an ideal guest room is sitting idle, year after year, waiting for some one to recognize its possibilities and to hang out the "Welcome" sign. This is in the attic. The average unfinished attic is simply a dump heap of a lot of things that may be seized as price less antiques two hundred years hence, but right now are worthless, discarded articles. Legitimate storage, such as screens and trunks may be housed in the basement, or, if the area is large enough, in one end of the attic.

The first step is to finish off the interior, sealing the rafters and side walls. By using celotex insulating lumber for this, a large part of the heating problem is solved. Sixty per cent of the heat generated in a house, engineers tell us, is lost by escaping through the attic, to which the heat naturally rises. The case after insulating lumber retards this escape and therefore tends to keep the guest room at a comfortable temperature. The addition of a small stove or gas or electric heater will give a hospitable glow and afford all the extra heat needed.

The line where the rafters meet the floor is the point of greatest heat leakage and should be carefully covered with strips of the insulating lumber before erecting the side walls. If

For Christmas - the Gift of Thrift

WHAT FINER THING could you give some member of your family or some good friend than a Christmas Club membership in one of our 1927 clubs now forming?

SUCH A GIFT would be DOUBLY appreciated, because it would be valued now and also valued—even more—next December when the club would mature.

OF COURSE ALL YOU NEED DO is pay one or more installments on the club and turn over the membership to the person you wish to remember. They will be glad to do the rest and will thank you for the opportunity you have given them to do so.

YOU CAN SECURE MEMBERSHIP Cards in our 1927 clubs—made out in the names of those you wish to remember—very easily and very quickly. The entire transaction will not take over five minutes of your time.

A GIFT OF THIS KIND will prove of lasting value and, as it will earn interest certainly it will be worth more fifty weeks from now than it is today.

JUST AS A SUGGESTION why not make this a THRIFT Christmas by taking out a few memberships for those dear to you in our 1927 Christmas Savings Clubs?

There Are Six Clubs From Which to Choose

- .10 a week for 50 week secures $5.00 plus interest
- .25 a week for 50 weeks secures $12.50 plus interest
- .50 a week for 50 weeks secures $25.00 plus interest
- 1.00 a week for 50 weeks secures $50.00 plus interest
- 2.00 a week for 50 weeks secures $100.00 plus interest
- 5.00 a week for 50 weeks secures $250.00 plus interest.

Showing the Way

AS Columbus demonstrated to the courtier who sought to detract from the credit due him for his discoveries, anyone can stand an egg on end—or cross strange seas—after someone else has shown the way.

The task of creating a nation-wide telephone service, like that of discovering a new world, is one for the pathfinder and the pioneer. The telephone as the modern American knows it, has been made possible by the doing of a multitude of things in the realms of research, engineering and business administration that had never been done before; by patiently working out an endless succession of seemingly unsolvable problems.

Only because of its willingness and ability to lead the way in telephone development has the Bell System been able to provide America with a nation-wide, universal service that sets the standard for the rest of the world.

Christmas Cards Bring Good Cheer

Little Messengers of Love Are Gladly Received by Everybody.

By GERTRUDE WALTON

WHAT value to anyone is a name on a postal card? This card cruce at Christmas does little more than fill our waste baskets. There is seldom a greeting saved to refer to after a day or so. This is my first cardless Christmas. If I can send so more than a card to my friends I shall send nothing. Laura Lee declared during an afternoon's shopping trip with her neighbor, Mrs. Rand.

"The card may go into the waste basket but the kindly thoughts that the card conveys to the one who receives it and the joy of the sender of the card could not be contained in the largest basket in the world. There are some things that we may not 'scrap,' nor can we afford to cast some things out of our lives. If my disagreeable and harmful manners and habits could be thrown into a scrap heap as easily as a card may be cast there, if the worthy, lovely impulses of the sender could be flung away in my brain-box for reference whenever a previous desire to be kind and unselfish is forgotten and the ugly, selfish part of myself begins to assert its ownership, I would be glad." Mrs. Rand answered kindly.

Two days before Christmas Edith Rand hurried across the street to the Lee home on an errand. The mail man had just left the door as Laura Lee met Edith with a handful of letters and cards.

"Please wait until I look over this card from Jane, the dear. She hasn't written me for ages. Let me see who this one is from. Why from Lena to Cuba! And one from Jack in Canada, and dear old pal Ethel in Mexico. When have I ever heard from Cora Holmes? I had lost her whereabouts. Lena is teaching in a mission school. Cousin Jack is in the government's employ and as busy as a bumble bee. We used to get our 'trig' together in college. He would help me while I wrote his English outlines. Dear Ethel says she has established a school for girls. And here is dear Margaret Lane with her third baby. She is writing this card while watching the baby who is ill. To think they found time to write to me. O, Edith, never have I realized before how happy a name on a card could make one feel. What if no one ever thought to write me? What a discovery to find that our thoughts, our love may be so big while sending a card, for no package is large enough anyway to hold genuine good will and love. The joy these messages have brought me could never be thrown into a waste basket. Please forgive my words the other afternoon. Can you hurry to town with me to buy all the cards they have? It will take a great number to distribute some of the good will and love that is bubbling over in my heart. It is true this joy, peace and love that Christmas means—the things the Babe in the Manger brought—can never be cast into a waste basket."

On Christmas Day

Keep a lookout for old Santa. He's coming soon to you. He's coming to the little ones. And to the big folks, too.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

ONCE again the glad time of the year is with us. Children who have been looking forward to Christmas week after week are filled with the pleasure of anticipation. Will they be disappointed?

Christmas celebrates the coming of a Child into the world, therefore it is essentially a children's holiday.

Of course, the boys and girls around our hearth need consideration, for they must be made happy, but how about the little boys and girls without fathers and mothers, or whose parents are in poverty? Are they to write in vain to "Dear Santa Claus"? Hundreds of these pitiful letters, scrawled by hopeful chubby fists, are left unopened at the post office every year. Mothers, fathers, aunts, uncles and cousins, our home is no longer the home in which we live, plus the yard or farm surrounding it. The entire neighborhood, town, city, county, state and nation is ours; its inhabitants live in our home. It is our duty, so far as we can, to make every child happy at Christmas. Instead of permitting ourselves to get buried selfishly in tissue paper and gay ribbons.

Let's make this holiday season one in which the Christmas spirit, the peace on earth and good will to all men, prevails everywhere. Especially where there are children. So a Merry Christmas to you.—Frank Herbert Sweet.

Crop Rotation Most Valuable

Increases Productivity of Soils as Effectively as Fertilizers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Crop rotation is a farm practice which may be used by the farmer to increase the productivity of his soils as effectively as the use of manure or commercial fertilizers, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Furthermore, crop rotation an ordinarily practiced does not entail any extra cost. The extra yield due to this practice is therefore a profit that may be credited to the farmer's managerial ability.

Rotation Effective.

A study of the long continued soil-fertility experiments of this country and of England, made by the department, has brought out some important facts about crop rotation in its relation to soil productivity. These are discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 1475-F, just issued. In general, crop rotation has been found to be practically 35 per cent as effective as farm manure or complete fertilizers in maintaining the yields of wheat, corn and oats, and about 80 per cent as effective as these fertilizers in increasing the yields of these three major crops. The beneficial effects of crop rotation do not inure to the benefits derived from the use of fertilizers; so that when these two farm practices are combined the one practice adds to the benefits of the other.

For example, corn at the Missouri experiment station yielded 22.4 bushels per acre from cultivation alone. When corn was manured the yield was increased by 14.7 bushels, or to 37.1 bushels per acre; when it was grown in rotation with other crops the yield was increased by 15.1 bushels, or to 37.5 bushels per acre. However, when both manuring and rotation were practiced, the acre yield was increased by 25.3 or to a total of 47.7 bushels per acre.

Trials at Urbana.

Even more striking results than the above were recorded in trials at Urbana, Ill. In these experiments the use of fertilizers consisting of pulverized limestone, farm manure and phosphate, was compared with a rotation of corn, oats and clover. The average yield of corn obtained without the use of either rotation or fertilizers on this particular prairie soil in Illinois, was 23.4 bushels per acre. The gain effected by rotation alone was practically three times that obtained from the use of fertilizers and lime, or 27.8 bushels due to rotation, and only 9.2 due to the fertilizers. The total increase from the use of both fertilizers and rotation was 44.2 bushels per acre, or 12 bushels greater than the sum of their separate increases.

While rotations in different sections, in a given locality, or even on a single farm may differ, there are certain fundamental principles of crop rotation which have general application. These must be understood by the farmer if he is to put himself in a position to utilize the results that have been worked out by state experiment stations for his locality. The purpose of this bulletin is to acquaint the farmer with the basic principles of crop rotation and to stress the importance of the practice, in relation to farming. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Balanced Ration Given in Abundance to Swine

A balanced ration given in abundance is what counts in producing hogs on a profitable basis, states J. H. McLeod, extension swine specialist, University of Tennessee. The farmer who feeds the most, not only puts a litter to the weight of a ton in the shortest length of time but also cheapens the cost per pound.

Make corn the basis of the ration and do not fail to add something to this fattening grain that will make muscle, bone, etc. Tankage and shorts given in equal parts by weight make a splendid addition to the corn. Milk always helps to increase gains. Feed what milk you have to spare and as the quantity of milk is increased, decrease the quantity of tankage. One gallon of milk will take the place of one pound of tankage. Liberal feeding is what turns the trick in the lean contest.

Place in Rotation Where Manure Gives Increases

A block of experiments to find the place in the rotation where manure gives the largest crop increases shows that manure applications on sandy soil do not necessarily show the same results as those on other soils. Results to date strongly indicate that top dressings of manure on sand produce larger crop increases than where manure is plowed down. A top dressing of manure after the wheat was taken off is a large factor in preserving the stand of clover. In addition to the manure, a rotation of corn, soy beans, wheat, alfalfa (two years) is being tested out. It appears that corn once in five years keeps above the safety line. The corn gets 100 pounds of an 0-12-0 fertilizer drilled in the row at planting time. The alfalfa is allowed to stand two years and is given a liberal application of acid phosphate at seeding time.

Lake Villa News

Making Ready for a Gay Christmas

Breakable Articles Should Be Removed to Places of Safety.

By MARGARET BRUCE

VERY home woman knows what an influx of extra things there is in the house at Christmas time. Every room is already as full as it can hold, yet we must make place for outgoing and incoming gifts, the boxes, the rolls of tinsel and ribbon, the pots of growing flowers that are sent by friends, the boxes of candy, the bowls of fruits and nuts, and all the pretty paraphernalia of the holiday.

All these extra articles must come to rest on the tables, the mantels, the tops of desks or bookshelves, and other surfaces, generally to the detriment if not the actual destruction of the vases, glass candelabra, bowls of berries, framed photographs and other ornaments that stay here the year round. There isn't room for everything, and in the Christmas luster something is sure to be pushed aside and broken.

The wise housewife, therefore, clears her decks a week or so before-hand. She carefully tucks away upon a closet shelf the breakable treasures of china, glass, pottery and plaster. On the mantel she leaves only some brass or silver candelabra, and perhaps a copper bowl for Christmas greens. The tables are cleared of all small objects and hold only a few books (in wooden or metal bookends) heavy reading lamps that cannot be tipped over and some Christmas magazines, perhaps.

Space on top of bookshelves, ordinarily occupied by swinging photograph frames, delicate blown glass figures, and the like, are swept clean and filled with branches of pine, sprays of hollyhocks or clumps of crimson berries, with some holly added the day before Christmas. As holly dries out more quickly than evergreens, and the yellowed leaves drop within a few days, it is best not to bring the holly into the warm house any earlier than necessary.

The dining room furnishings should be given the same protective treatment. Delicate tea sets, the fragile after-dinner coffee service, even breakable fruit bowls and the like should be hidden away until after the exciting morning when gifts are opened at the breakfast table, perhaps, and the buffet, sideboard, serving table and mantel are hastily crowded with half-wrapped gifts. The house will look furnished enough, never fear; and you will have the comfortable feeling that some of your breakable treasures is in danger.

Danny's Visit to the Big Toy Shop

"Drums!" Was His Christmas Slogan, and He Won the Argument.

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

"DANNY, cling tight to mother's hand. You might get lost. Stay close, dear—this is a frightful crowd."

Mrs. Crawford looked down on her small son and smiled. This was his first trip to see the Christmas toys and he was all flushed with bright enthusiasm. His blue eyes lifted to hers solemnly. This was a tremendous occasion for Danny.

"Now!" said Mrs. Crawford and she half-pushed the little lad through a revolving door. In a moment they were inside the store.

"O-o-o-h!" whispered Danny. The brilliant lights, the gay garlands awning from pillar to pillar, the music playing from the balcony dazzled him.

"Where shall we go?" asked Mrs. Crawford. She knew well enough what he would say. He had been saying it for weeks, but she wanted to hear it again.

"Drums!" insisted Danny, "drums!"

They took an elevator and Danny's small hand gripped his mother's with tight fearfulness. He had never before been in a room that "went up and down" as he later described it. At the toy department they stepped out and from that moment Danny walked in a kind of glittering dream.

"Do you like it, dear?" smiled Mrs. Crawford. Danny could find no words. He nodded several times, and his blue eyes grew bluer, and wider and wider. When one is three years old the Christmastide holds an amazing wonder.

There was a Santa Claus. There were rocking horses, there were toys that wound up and went off by themselves. There was, in fact, everything to make a child's heart leap with delight.

But Danny would have none of it "Drums," he demanded, "drums!"

They were just turning into another aisle when Mrs. Crawford saw a friend at the other side of the room. "Danny, there's Mrs. Morison. I must speak to her a moment."

Through the crowd she threaded her way, hurrying lest she miss the chance of seeing her neighbor. After a few minutes of pushing and squeezing Mrs. Crawford succeeded in reaching Mrs. Morison. There passed a cordial greeting between them and then Mrs. Morison said:

"You left Danny at home?"

"Oh, no! He was determined to come, so I brought him."

"Have you left him in charge of an attendant?"

"No, he's—" Mrs. Crawford looked down at her side. Danny was gone.

"Why, he must have . . . somebody's jostled him away from me . . . he was close beside me a moment ago . . .!" The frightened mother turned and hurried as fast as possible back to the aisle from which she had first spied Mrs. Morison. Perhaps Danny was still there pressed against the counter and waiting. How could she . . . how could she have forgotten for an instant his small, clinging hands?

But Danny was not pressed against the counter. People surged back and forth. Hundreds and hundreds of people. A cold, sick feeling of helplessness swept over her. She felt lost in this merry tide of Christmas shoppers.

"Anything the matter, ma'am?" Mrs. Crawford met the kind, inquiring glance of a floorwalker.

"Oh, yes," she breathed, "my little boy—Danny. He's just three, and somehow he has been separated from me. . . . I can't understand . . ."

She was bewildered and frantic.

The floorwalker proved to be a man of action. In no time at all he found a policeman, a store detective and three clerks. They began a thorough and systematic search of the toy department. Danny was carefully described to them. His fair hair, blue eyes and sturdy body.

"He'll be so frightened . . . and confused!" mourned the distressed mother, "my little, little lad—"

News of the lost boy spread quickly. Other mothers joined the search. Clerks deliberately left their counters to help. But there was one man in particular who seemed to work the hardest. He was a big fellow with a shock of light hair. There was something comforting in the very set of his shoulders.

"Who is that man?" asked Mrs. Crawford of the floorwalker; "he reminds me somehow of Danny . . . as if Danny were grown up. He'll look that way, I'm sure, when he's a man."

"That is our new store detective," replied the floorwalker. "By George, I believe he's found the child! See, he's bending down and smiling!"

In a moment Mrs. Crawford was also bending down and smiling through her tears. In a corner, far from the aisle and back of a small mountain of drums was Danny, her own little lad. Tired from the unwonted exertion of shopping he had fallen fast asleep.

Both arms were hugged around a drum, and held tightly in each fist was a drumstick. He had found his heart's desire . . . and he was neither frightened nor lonely!

The Christmas Eve Party

The store detective lifted him, drum and all, and gave him to his mother.

"Here is Danny, Bertha," he said gently.

"Daniel Henderson . . . where in the world . . .?"

"Just felt town a day or two ago, alster! Landed this job and was going to surprise you at Christmas. Buy the minute I caught sight of your face I decided the surprise would have to come now. And I found the little rascal for you, bless him! He'll never give up that drum, so I'll make a Christmas present of it for my namesake. Do you think he looks like me?" The big detective looked about happily, and the floorwalker assured him he had never seen so close a resemblance in his life.

"Drums!" murmured Danny in his mother's arms, "drums . . ."

HIS SCHEME.

I. M. P. Curious: Making any preparations for Christmas?

Frank Norocks: Yep, I'm looking for a hiding place now.

ALWAYS CHRISTMAS

By WILLIAM D. NEEBIT In Rural New Yorker

USED to think that Christmas was nothin' but a day to get a lot of presents and to give a lot away; shouted "Merry Christmas" and helped to trim the tree; just a day of Christmas was all that I could see.

Since I found that Christmas is more than any day, Christmas came to our house—an' never went away.

Struck of a sudden that Friendliness and Cheer was meant to be on duty more than one day in the year; if we're happy Christmas, why not the day before? An' the day that follows, and so on, evermore?

Got to thinkin' of it—an' that is why I say Christmas came to our house—an' never went away.

Lots of us go ploddin' along the road of life. An' think one day of gladness will make up for all the strife; but the Christmas spirit can show you how you need.

To make each day a Christmas in thought an' word and deed. Used to pack the kindness in camphor balls next day. Till Christmas came to our house—an' never went away.

We just keep on givin' to strangers and to kin. An' find that what is going out is always comin' in; makes the sunshine brighter where we've got to live. To learn that givin' keeps in; what you have you give.

Holly in December and violets in May—And Christmas came to our house—an' never went away.

Used to think that Christmas was nothin' but a date. Till I learned that truly you would never have to wait; but that it's the spirit that never stays apart. If you let it find you and keep it in your heart.

Since I found that Christmas is more than just a day, Christmas came to our house—an' never went away.

What's the Answer?

Willey—Remember that old million-aire wanted to marry me?

Hubby—Yes.

"And how easily you got me away from him?"

"Bet your life I do, ha! ha!"

"Well, he married that Flossie Flapper you used to like pretty well and has just bought her a set of sables for Christmas."

Anybody ever hear a flapper sing "Home, Sweet Home?"
Christmas savings funds are ripe enough to pick.

Grandad may have been a sod buster, but not on the golf links.

That big hole in the family budget is where the turkey went through.

Who remembers when a girl with an unattractive face had to let it go at that?

Mother kept that schoolgirl complexion by occasionally walking five or ten miles past a lot of drug stores.

Cheese, says tradition, is one of the oldest of foods, and no archaeological expedition was needed to unearth that fact.

Whatever became of the old-fashioned girl who, at this time of year, had a dresser drawer full of dollies and fancy work prepared for Christmas giving?

Wilmot News

A large number of fans, who have been eagerly awaiting the opening of the basketball season, were present to see the high school and alumni teams clash in their annual battle last Friday evening. The high school lads, while small in size, appeared confident in their new uniforms of cardinal. Experience and a big advantage in size gave a hard earned victory to the alumni tossers by a score of 18 to 12.

The advance ticket sale being carried on for the Richmond game next Friday, December tenth, is proving very successful, and it is evident that seats will be at a premium. Richmond is the oldest rival in the history of the school, and this game will arouse much interest.

The second number of the Lyceum Course will be given Monday evening Dec. 13th. This number should be extremely popular as Bob Briggs, cartoonist and entertainer is in great demand throughout the country and it is only through a special arrangement with the Lyceum Bureau that Mr. Briggs could be induced to appear on the local course.

Mr. J. T. Giles, state high school inspector, visited the high school on Tuesday, he presided at a meeting of the high school principals and superintendents of Kenosha and Racine counties in Kenosha. Among those present were R. S. Hienfeldt and J. E. Mulder.

The honor roll and special honor roll for the second six weeks shows a marked increase over the previous period. Five girls succeeded in maintaining grades of 90 or more in each of four subjects, and Lyle McDougall is the only boy who attained that honor.

Gladys Bolton and Ruth Barber played a piano duet at the P. T. A. meeting of the Salom Mound school last Thursday. Mr. Mulder played a violin solo and gave a talk on "Understanding."

Tubercular testing of cows last week on the retest result in four cows of the herd belonging to Paul Brinkman being condemned, seven for John Mitz; and seven for Carl Ganger. Herds on other farms in the vicinity were tested the first of the week.

Ants That Bake Bread

Ants have been found in Walmark which actually make bread by chewing seeds into pulp, forming it in loaves, baking them in the sun and then storing them away for future use.

Angels So Soon!

If flying devils are to be as numerous and as noisy as those on land, permanent wings will be the only refuge for the ordinary mortal, says the Washington Post.

"Not Worth a Rap"

A rap was a counterfeit Irish coin of the time of George I which passed for a half-penny, though not really worth a fourth of that value.

Phillies Block Path of Giants in Pennant Race

At the close of every major league pennant race the unsuccessful contenders can usually point to some particular club that destroyed their pennant hopes.

The New York Giants have been the flux club of the Cincinnati Reds. A succession of reverses, six in a row, at the hands of Mettraw's club, was a serious handicap to the chances of the Ohio entry in the National league race.

Chicago likewise, has been a tough team for the St. Louis Cardinals to beat. The Cubs, also, have troubled the New York Giants.

However, the great success the badly Phillies have had against New York has held the Giants back.

Many a pennant has been lost by the ability of some inferior club to consistently ruin a strong contender. That is the history of most big league campaigns.

Ireland Deplores Great Decline in All Sports

The failure of Irish athletes in international competitions has provoked much disappointment in Ireland, and the newspapers are discussing the cause of the decline in Irish athletic fame.

Outside of a few clubs in Dublin, athletic sports mostly are dormant all over Ireland. The colleges are blamed for lack of interest in athletics.

A first-class stadium is considered necessary and it is suggested that one should be erected as a memorial to General Collins, who was keenly interested in amateur athletics.

Ed Hammock, pitcher for Johnstown, champions of the Middle Atlantic league club, has been sold to the Pittsburgh Nationals.

As long as that German doesn't boast that he can swim the channel with a machine gun on his back, the British will sit tight and listen.

It is understood that any reference to the "net game," in speaking of professional tennis, means what is left when the promoter has taken his.

Walter (Doc) Gautreau of the Boston Braves is the smallest man in baseball—a midget of 5 feet 2 3/4 inches, weighing approximately 152 pounds.

The game of golf has been growing by leaps and bounds in Canada, with new clubs springing up from coast to coast until there are now well over 500 courses.

Gives "Minstrel Show" on Organ

ELSIE MAE LOOK, member of the staff of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station, WLS, Chicago, holds the distinction of being the youngest organist "on the air." When she was but five years old Miss Look played her first piano selection. She continued at that instrument until she was old enough to make known her preference for the organ. Within a surprisingly short time she had mastered the instrument. Miss Look made her Chicago debut in the duties are many. She is at the pipe organ for Sunday noon recitals. Each Tuesday and Saturday noon she is in the studio for the R. F. D. Dinnerbell Saturday night finds her filling requests for selections. Recently another feature has been claiming her services, the "Elsie Mae Minstrel," a feature that takes the listener through the old time black face fun program. Frequently she aids at Lullaby Time, the children's hour.
